Unique Aspects of India at UNCSW

Aspect	Description
Statutory Body for Women's Rights	The National Commission for Women (NCW) is a statutory body set up by the National Commission for Women Act of 1990. Its main goal is to safeguard and promote women's rights across India.
National Coordinating Agency for UNCSW	In April 2009, the Government of India appointed NCW as the National Coordinating Agency for the UNCSW, which helped enhance India's involvement with the commission.
Public Hearings and Grassroots Engagement	NCW holds public hearings all over the country to collect direct insights on women's issues, making sure that grassroots voices are included in shaping policies.
Capacity Building Initiatives	NCW runs training programs aimed at police, judiciary, and administrative officials to foster gender sensitivity and advocate for women's rights.

Financial Assistance to NGOs	NCW offers financial assistance to NGOs to carry out research and studies focused on women's issues, promoting teamwork aimed at achieving gender equality.
Digital Outreach and Awareness	NCW makes it a point to share important information and promote awareness about women's rights and related topics through its official website and social media channels.
Collaboration with UN Women	NCW works hand in hand with UN Women and various international organizations to ensure that our national efforts are in sync with global standards for empowering women.
