Unique Aspects of Iran at UNCSW

Aspect	Description
Expulsion from CSW	In December 2022, Iran was kicked off the Commission on the Status of Women because of its ongoing violations of women's rights. This marked a significant milestone for the CSW.
State-Enforced Dress Codes	The mandatory hijab laws in Iran, along with the actions of the morality police, have become focal points for international criticism regarding the country's gender policies.
Grassroots Women's Movements	Despite facing governmental restrictions, Iranian women have been at the forefront of powerful grassroots movements, passionately advocating for gender equality and personal freedoms.
Legal Disparities	Iranian laws frequently reinforce gender inequality, which has a significant impact on women's rights regarding marriage, inheritance, and their ability to provide legal testimony.
Educational Attainments vs. Employment Opportunities	Even though Iranian women are excelling in their education, they still encounter major obstacles when it comes to securing equal job opportunities.
International Advocacy	Iranian women's rights activists have rallied global support, shining a spotlight on domestic gender issues and drawing international attention to their cause.

Cultural and Religious Contexts	Iran's approach to women's rights is closely linked to how it interprets Islamic law, which in turn shapes its position in international discussions, such as those at the UNCSW.
