BOOK RECOMMENDATIONS

- "Egypt's Foreign Policy in Times of Crisis" by Stephan Roll

Everything is there if you want some political chaos (nowadays, of course). This one explains the way Egypt handles its messes in and out of the country. It's like bigger than just what happens inside Cairo.

- "The Struggle for Egypt: From Nasser to Tahrir Square" by Steven A. Cook

Big names and big moments. Nasser, Sadat, Mubarak, Tahrir—Cook pretty much cooking all the twists in the plot. You'll be given the reasons why Egypt behaves in a certain way in the region. Spoiler alert: it's decades of baggage.

- "Understanding the Arab-Israeli Conflict: Egypt's Role" by Michael Scott-Baumann

Egypt's always in the thick of the Middle East drama. This book spells out how Cairo plays both sides of the fence, sometimes literally. Could get spicy.

- "Modern Egypt: What Everyone Needs to Know" by Bruce K. Rutherford

Short, punchy, and not too heavy—if you want a crash course on what actually goes on in Egypt, this is your jam. Domestic stuff, foreign policy—no stone unturned.

- "Revolution and Authoritarianism in North Africa" by Frédéric Volpi

Zooms out a bit—North Africa squad, assemble! Egypt's not an island, so this one connects the dots, especially on how the UN fits into the whole mess.

Unique Aspects of Egypt's Engagement with UNHRC

- Anti-Terrorism Legislation: Egypt's implementation of sweeping anti-terrorism laws has faced backlash for its focus on silencing human rights advocates and stifling dissent.
- Mass Trials and Death Sentences: The country has carried out mass trials that have led to a significant number of death sentences, sparking serious worries about the fairness of the trial process.
- Restrictions on Civil Society: Stringent laws and regulations have really put a damper on how NGOs and civil society organizations can operate.
- Media Censorship: The government has put some serious restrictions on press freedom, which includes blocking websites and even arresting journalists.
- Detention of Human Rights Defenders: Prominent human rights activists have been detained, often under charges related to national security.
- Use of Military Courts: Civilians, including children, have faced trials in military courts, which goes against international human rights standards.
- Forced Evictions in Sinai: Military operations in North Sinai have resulted in forced evictions and the destruction of homes, often without providing proper compensation.
- Digital Surveillance: The government has ramped up its surveillance efforts, which raises concerns about privacy rights and freedom of expression.
